Dear Participants,

On behalf of the U.S. Department of State, it is our great pleasure to welcome you to the Community College Administrator Program (CCAP) with Ukraine.

We are pleased and honored to welcome you to Florida for the second CCAP with Ukraine. The CCAP focuses on expanding access to higher education opportunities through technical and vocational education programs that are responsive to local workforce and community needs. The program will provide a comprehensive exploration of the U.S. community college model and will hopefully inspire you to develop projects that will apply relevant lessons learned to your education context in your home country.

The CCAP shares innovative methods and best practices in community college administration as well as information about the model's structure and adaptability to meet local, regional, and national education needs. We hope that the CCAP is a two-way exchange between higher education professionals that may lead to ongoing linkages between administrators and institutions in the United States and your country. We have no doubt that you will be inspired by the discussions and interactions you will have with the people you meet as part of this program.

Welcome and best wishes for a stimulating, challenging, and enjoyable program!

Sincerely,

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF STATE, BUREAU OF EDUCATIONAL AND CULTURAL AFFAIRS

As mandated by the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961, the U.S. Department of State's Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs (ECA) works to build friendly, peaceful relations between the people of the United States and the people of other countries through academic, cultural, sports, and professional exchanges, as well as public-private partnerships.

ECA builds networks through academic, professional, youth, sports, cultural, and private exchanges, as well as through cultural heritage preservation. ECA funds more than 55,000 exchange participants each year, both Americans who travel abroad and international visitors to be hosted in all 50 states. Overall, ECA has had over one million program participants to date, including more than 75 Nobel Laureates and nearly 450 current and former heads of state and government.

The Community College Administrator Program (CCAP) was established in 2008 to support the development of higher education by expanding the capacity of key educators and administrators from technical and vocational institutions with connections to economically disadvantaged and historically underserved populations in local communities. From 2008 to 2018, nearly 300 participants from nine countries have learned about the community college model and how these institutions throughout the United States partner with business and industry to promote workforce development in their local communities.

The CCAP is a program of the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the United States Department of State, supported by the people of the United States, and implemented by Florida State University in partnership with Santa Fe College.

COMMUNITY COLLEGE ADMINISTRATOR PROGRAM WITH UKRAINE

PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The Community College Administrator Program (CCAP) with Ukraine is a five-week program of study for officials with higher education planning responsibilities and administrators from post-secondary vocational and technical institutions. Conducted by Florida State University and Santa Fe College, the exchange will consist of a one-week Executive Dialogue and a four-week Community College Seminar. The CCAP is a U.S. Department of State exchange program.

EXECUTIVE DIALOGUE

Designed to provide an overview of the U.S. community college system and explore each nation's development of community academies. Higher education officials and administrators from Ukraine will meet with legislative leaders and senior policy-makers of the Florida Community College System in order to provide a comprehensive understanding of the development, organization and administration of a U.S. community college system integrally linked to secondary education, higher education and the workforce training needs of business and industry. In addition to the administrators, the program will support high-level higher-education officials to participate in the Executive Dialogue.

FOUR-WEEK COMPARATIVE COMMUNITY COLLEGE SEMINAR

Designed to train administrators of post-secondary vocational and technical institutions or officials with higher education planning responsibilities in key elements of community college leadership, to provide direct exposure to the day-to-day administrative responsibilities and challenges of a U.S. community college and investigate specific community college academic and vocational programs relevant to the needs of participants' home institutions.

OBJECTIVES

- Demonstrate enhanced ability to effectively address governance and policy questions integral to the establishment of a community college system relevant to Ukraine's context;
- Contribute to the present and future demands for policy formulation, continuous planning, program management decision making and day-to-day administration of community academies in Ukraine;
- Explore aspects the U.S. higher education system and provide a more comprehensive understanding of the U.S. community college administration;
- Articulate the unique and important opportunities created through merging academic, business and management skills through the community college system; and
- Encourage on-going collaboration between Ukraine and U.S. counterparts involved in community college administration.

GOVERNANCE

1:00 p.m.-2:15 p.m. UCC	History and Philosophy of Community Colleges Історія та Філософія Комунальних
	Dr. Jeffrey Ayala Milligan, Director, Learning Systems Institute, FSU
Jeffrey Ayala Milligan	The community college movement in the United States is usually thought of as beginning in 1901, with the establishment of Joliet Junior College in Illinois. Over the last century, that movement has grown to encompass more than 1,000 public community colleges all across the country, enrolling close to eight million students each year-- the largest single sector in American higher education. The uniquely American character of the community college--with its emphasis on equal opportunity, open access, and economic development--will form the basis of Dr. Milligan's presentation.
2:30-4:30 p.m. UCC	Community College Development Розвиток Комунального Коледжу
	Dr. Paul Parker, Consultant, International Educational Development
Paul Parker	This session will begin with a presentation and discussion of a common higher educational development planning and management framework. The framework encompasses the application at national and local levels of the functional concepts with respect to policies and programs related to Student Access; Program and Services Breadth and Depth; Measures of Quality Assurance; Relevance to Students and Society of Instructional Programs and Services to Students and Society, Extent of Diversity Populations Being Served, the Roles of Central and Local Governance, Financial Responsibility and Sources of Support at Individual, National and Local Levels; and the Necessity of External and Internal Cooperation, Coordination and Collaboration. While there will be an opening presentation of an overview of the framework and its functional development concepts, the CCAP participants will be organized into groups to do a general assessment of their own national higher education system development related to the framework above within their national and local context. A summary discussion of the group outcomes will follow, and the session will conclude with a summary discussion of the uses of the conceptual and functional framework and concepts in participant visits to government agencies in Tallahassee, at Santa Fe College and elsewhere, especially to assess the applicability of the development of the Florida system and its colleges to their own national or local context.
